THE EVENT

The 3rd International Seminar on Language, Literature, and Cultural Processes, NEW VOICES. NEW LANGUAGES. NEW READINGS, aims at creating a space for academic discussion on aspects relating to the following fields of knowledge: language, literature, and cultural processes.

By means of conferences, round-table discussions, symposia, and talks, the event has the purpose of – in compliance with its frequency – continuing with the discussions proposed during the 1st and 2nd SILLPRO (held in 2011 and 2014, also at Universidade de Caxias do Sul), as well as fostering new debates concerning the subject matters that brings us together again on this occasion.

Thinking about new voices – in prose and poetry – that have arisen in the Latin-American universe after the passing of writers acclaimed during the Boom, about new languages used by those writers, and about new readings proposed by them means to open our horizon for a reality that surrounds us and does not limit us due to our differences or to lack of knowledge. Instead, it makes us seek for a fruitful and productive dialogue with the Other, with the new, with something that has just begun and with those who share the same history and future.

Letters, words, ideas were and still are the best means for building a society that seeks human and responsible knowledge in all areas. Our goal in this opportunity is to build up together, listening to those new voices, paying attention to new languages, and sharing new readings.
